

‘Making a Difference’

A co-ordinated approach – ‘safeguarding is everyone’s responsibility’

“Everyone who works with children has a responsibility for keeping them safe. No single practitioner can have a full picture of a child’s needs and circumstances and, if children and families are to receive the right help at the right time, everyone who comes into contact with them has a role to play in identifying concerns, sharing information and taking prompt action.”
\(Paragraph 16 – Working Together to Safeguard Children 2018\)

This guidance has been developed in consultation with partners with this fundamental principle at its core. It is essential that all members of the children’s workforce, and those that come into contact with adults who care for or are connected with children, are familiar with Working Together and through its application are able to demonstrate a commitment to supporting children and their families at the earliest point of identified need.

Introduction

This Multi-Agency Guide of Levels (Thresholds) of Need is for practitioners and managers in all agencies that work with, or are involved with, children, young people and their families in Halton. This Guidance covers the period from pre-birth up to 17 years and 364 days.

What is a threshold?

A threshold is a point at which something happens, stops happening or changes for a child or family. Thresholds are a way of describing transitions between levels of need and types of services and support. They are also ways of identifying the points at which professionals should engage in dialogue with each other and with families to assess what has happened and what, if anything, needs to happen next or needs to happen differently. Thresholds are dynamic and need to be reviewed at each contact with the child and family.

This document will assist practitioners and managers in assessing and identifying a child’s level of need and matching that need to the right service response. The purpose is to help us to provide the right support, at the right level, at the right time. We know that failing to do this often means that there is an escalation of need, poorer outcomes for children and families and increased risk for the child.

To support children and families effectively we need to share information across different agencies and professional disciplines. This is important when providing early help where a family has emerging problems, and it is essential when putting in place effective child protection services. Information sharing amongst partners is essential in identifying and meeting a child’s needs and to keeping them safe.

Children and their families have a right to expect that we will be open and honest with them when we are worried about them and think they need some help. Professionals should not make a referral to iCART without seeking the consent of the family unless there is a risk of immediate harm to the child. See section on Consent

When do we provide support?

There is significant research that shows preventative services, and those that provide early help and support deliver the best outcomes for children and their families. Working Together to Safeguard Children (July 2018) describes how providing early help is more effective in promoting the welfare of children than reacting later. As such our approach deliberately seeks to encourage prevention and early help with a view to reducing demand for the more reactive, intrusive and expensive services.

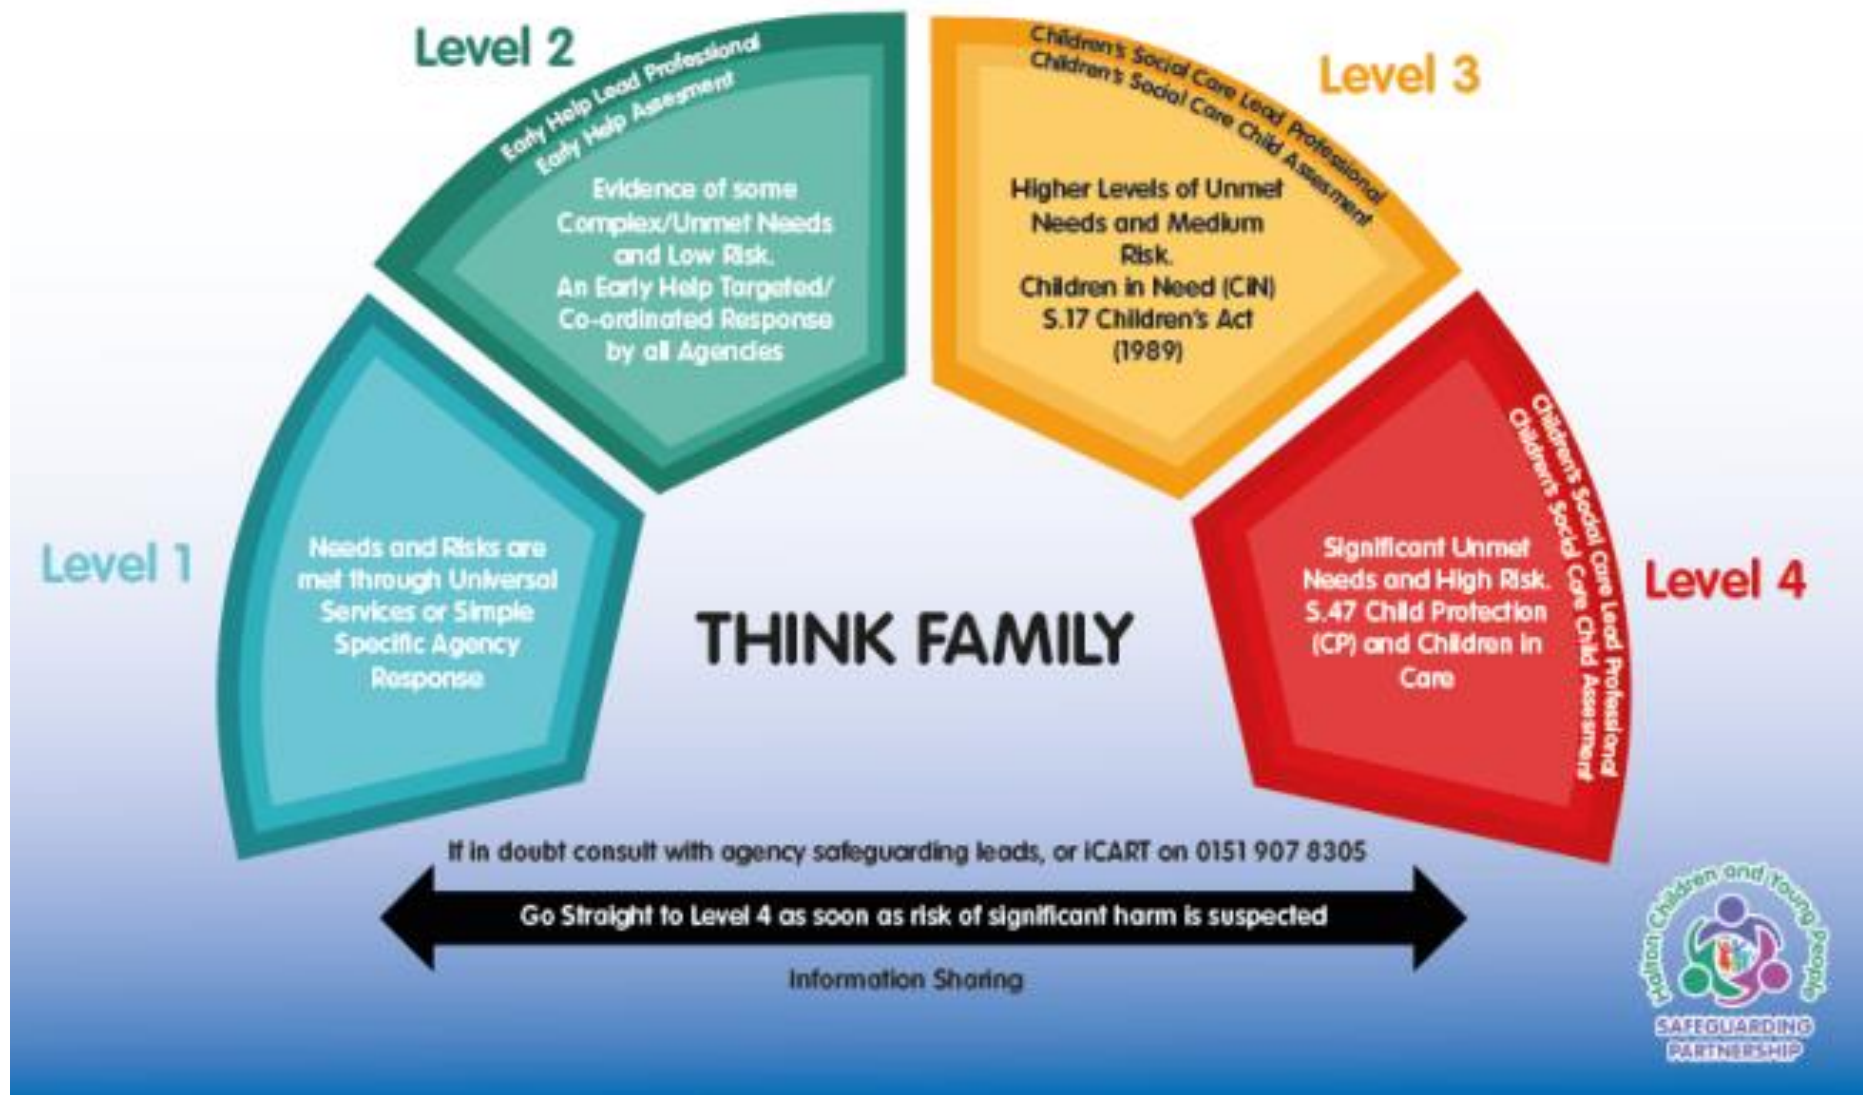

The threshold document is not intended to give professionals ‘the answer’. Professional dialogue is essential if we are to make informed decisions in the best interests of the child. Talk to the family, talk to your safeguarding lead, talk to other professionals.

The levels of need are not prescriptive and allow for practitioner judgement. Examples are provided within each dimension to aid practitioner decision-making – they are examples not definitions and should be used to support a practitioner’s assessment. The list of needs is not exhaustive, does not take into account protective factors and is not age specific. There will always be issues that do not easily fit and would benefit from a discussion with agency safeguarding leads, and if still unresolved, with the Integrated Contact and Referral Team (iCART). The threshold document is a starting point to assist people who work with children young people and families to come to common understanding of what the family needs.

Partnership working is essential to ensuring positive outcomes for children and to reduce the need for more intensive interventions at a later stage. Working with families, a strengths based model/approach should be used to support children, young people, families, carers and communities to help themselves wherever possible.

Halton Continuum of Need

Thresholds and Level Descriptors

The Level of Need indicators define in detail the four levels of the framework. These needs and risk indicators are illustrative in assisting practitioners in having a shared understanding of the whole needs/risk of a child/ young person. Practitioners' should be aware that this is not an exhaustive list of needs and is provided as a tool to aid practitioners in decision making. Practitioners when trying to identify the correct level of need should seek advice and guidance from their line manager, and/or agency designated safeguarding lead.

Level 1 – Universal Children, young people and families whose needs and risks are and can be met by universal services or simple specific agency response
Universal services are provided and are routinely available to all children, young people and families. These services are accessed in the local community and delivered by partners including schools, GPs, hospitals, emergency services, community health services, children's centres, youth hubs, police and voluntary & community groups. Universal services are available to families at any stage on the Halton Continuum of Need
Response	Signposting to appropriate universal services (some listed above), offer of information and advice and where to find support. Needs can be met from single agency response from services or through a specific piece of individual and/or group work or brief intervention which could be delivered by the agency requesting the need. Pre MAP may be used to identify and address the need.
Information sharing	Informed and explicit consent required
Examples of possible indicators	Health and Wellbeing	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Registered with a GP • Meeting developmental milestones • Good hygiene • Ability to self-care as appropriate to age • Appropriately cared for when ill • Good emotional health and/or well being • Age appropriate social and communication skills • Positive sense of self and abilities

Consent

Early Help Assessments and Child in Need Assessments can only be carried out with the consent of the parent(s). Participation in the Assessment and in any resulting Plan is voluntary on the part of the parent.

Due to this it is essential that professionals seek consent from the parent prior to making a referral into Children's Social Care or prior to making requests for support from agencies contributing to Multi Agency Plans.

Professionals must make it clear to the parent(s) that they are giving consent for their personal information and their personal circumstances to be shared between agencies. It must be clear to parents where their information will go, for what purpose and for how long the information will be kept on agencies' records.

Referrals into Children's Social Care (Level 3) or requests for support from Early Help Services (Level 2) which are made without parental consent will not be accepted.

Only where there is a clear child protection concern (Level 4), and there is reason to believe that the risk may escalate by approaching the parents/carers, can enquiries can begin without the parent's/carer's consent. Circumstances which meet this threshold may include:

- Suspicion that a child will be forced into marriage or removed from the country against their will;
- Suspicion that a child is at risk of female genital mutilation;
- A disclosure of sexual or physical abuse putting the child at immediate risk;
- Suspicion that illness is being fabricated;
- Evidence that the child is at immediate risk of harm (a child is not generally at immediate risk if they are in school or at some other venue with a professional present, as action can be taken before the child returns home)

In almost all cases, therefore, a parent should be aware that a referral into Children's Social Care is being made.

Transitions between levels

In some cases a child or young person will go through a number of transition points on their journey to having their needs met. For example, a child whose needs do not respond to services provided at Level 1 may need to receive a more targeted response within Level 2. Similarly, a child supported within Level 2 whose circumstances and situation do not improve sufficiently may need to receive the specialist assessment and support provided at Level 3. It is acknowledged that children may move from one level of need to another and that agencies and services may offer support at more than one level. What is important is that this is monitored and reviewed to inform the most appropriate level of support for all children young people and families in Halton.
